Esthetic Realities for Today and Tomorrow: Photography, Color Matching, Materials and Ceramic Layering

Presented by: Peter Pizzi, CDT, MDT

Sponsored by: VITA

In this one day lecture and interactive hands-on demo, Peter Pizzi, CDT, MDT will stress the importance of photography, the use of natural teeth and material selections to discuss proper layering and substructure design for zirconia based ceramics, while creating an understanding of how to translate what we see in nature into our restorations. With an understanding of the new material options available and an understanding of how to use them intra-orally, we can create esthetic restorations.

Learn firsthand how to design zirconia substructures and treat zirconia materials properly to aid in their ability to absorb and reflect light. Peter will show you how to create a working canvas through a simple internal characterization process to create depth and improve the value of your restorations. Unlike many hands-on programs, Peter's unique ability to motivate and provide insight to all participants and to provide useful tips that can be applied immediately makes this program well worth your time.

The day will begin with a short lecture, followed by an interactive hands-on demo by Peter.

Objectives:

- The importance of communicating color with photography
- Understanding our substructure, including bonding, oxidating and design
- Relating opacity and translucency to depth
- The 'canvas concept' build method, and effects of enamel filtration
- Proper use of mammelon and modifier materials
- Tips for contour, surface texture and luster

No materials are needed for this workshop.
